

UNILEVER CONCLUDES REVIEW OF MEDIA PLANNING AND BUYING SERVICES

October 8th 2012

Unilever has announced the outcome of the global review of its media planning and buying agency services. The review was initiated in early 2012, in line with company policy to evaluate media agency arrangements periodically. Unilever ANZ is pleased to confirm its incumbent agency, PhD, has been reappointed in New Zealand.

“We’re delighted to confirm that we will be continuing our relationship with PhD in New Zealand,” said Peter Boone, Marketing VP Australasia.

“The review process was comprehensive and not only took into consideration media pricing, but also the strength of an agency’s strategic planning capability and executional brilliance. We know we need all of these elements to ensure our brands are best placed to compete in an increasingly cluttered marketplace.

“Creative media planning, new ways of content integration, and innovative channel use are all critical to ensure we continue to effectively engage consumers in our market-leading brands, including Lipton, Tresemmé, Streets Ice Cream, Rexona, Flora, Dove, and Vaseline,” said Mr. Boone.
